

FIX ANY BOO-BOO...FAST!

AUGUST 2010
PARENTS.COM

Parents

*Tantrum Tamers

An M.D. Mom's Discipline Rx, P. 50

Stop Your Child's Headaches

Baby Drama

Smart Advice To Get You Through The First Year

Tell Us What's On Your Mind
← JOIN THE MOTHERBOARD

5

Healthy (Veggie Free!) Recipes For Picky Eaters

SPECIAL REPORT

Children And Toxins

Manners Makeover

RAISE A POLITE PRESCHOOLER, P. 192

When will she get permanent teeth?

It often takes a few weeks to see the ridges of the new tooth, and a few months before it's fully grown. But sometimes permanent teeth start growing in behind baby teeth, says Shehzad Sheikh, D.M.D., a dentist in Sterling, Virginia. If they're more than halfway in, ask a dentist if the baby tooth needs to be pulled. Also check with her if a new tooth is crooked or discolored. ☐